The Boston club made its first appearance of the season in Washington yesterday and overwhelmingly defeated the Senators by the score of 17 to 1. It should have been a shut out, but Pitcher Willis made a balk toward first base and Slagle, who was on third walked home. The exhibition of ball playing by the Bostons was simply perfection itself and at certain points bordered on the sensational. In the eighth inning Collins ran over to the left field seats for a high foul, and as the ball was failing into one of the private boxes coolly reached over and caught the sphere in the most matter-of-fact way. For coolness and nerve the play will hardly ever be equaled. In the last inning "Chick" Stahl "ran a mile" for Casey's foul fly and nabbed it about six inches from the ground. While both these plays were unnecessary to land a victory, they illustrate what the Boston players can do when the chance offers.

pitchers, the former being very effective throughout, while the latter went to pieces n the fourth, owing to poor support. From that time out it was simply a procession of Boston men around the bases. Winnie of Boston men around the bases. Winnie can pitch good ball, but it takes more than one player to win games.

The Washington club has played six games so far this season, losing five and winning one. Of this number three have been first-class exhibitions, but the other three have been simply parodles on the national game. The first two games in Phila-delphia were of a high order, and luck was an important factor in defeat. The Monan important factor in deteat. The Monday game in the Quaker city was very poor. Tuesday, with Gus Weyhing in the box, the game was satisfactory, but the last two games are of a kind that leaves a bad taste in one's mouth. There must be something radically wrong when a club dreps from good playing to had yet held. drops from good playing to bad, no half-way measures being thought of. The Sen-ators can play good ball, and Manager Irwin should see to it that they put forward their best efforts. During yesterday's game there was an entire lack of team work, the players apparently playing everything "safe" so as not to make an error, and players apparently playing everything "safe" so as not to make an error, and going to the bat with the demeanor of amateurs. This sort of work is entirely unexpected from young men just graduating into the big league, and is on a line of play generally adopted by veterans who are on the ragged edge and ready to drop back into the minor leagues. are on the ragged edge and ready to drop back into the minor leagues or quit the game entirely. Snap, dash and chance taking should be the Senators' order of play, but a more listless lot of men seldom went onto the diamond than the players who were the Washington club uniform yesterday. A club like the Washingtons is bound to show up nearly when nitted yesterday. A club like the Washingtons is bound to show up poorly when pitted against such past masters of the game as the Bostons, but for all this there is no excuse for slovenly efforts and lack of confidence coming from a set of men with the strength and fleetness of foot possessed by nearly all of the Washington players. The Senators can play better ball, and as Mansional may be pulled off at any time. The "tip" is already going round, that Baltimore and Cleveland will enators can play better ball, and as Man Senators can play better ball, and as Man-ager Irwin and Mr. Wagner remarked last evening at the close of the game, "they will do so or we will know the reason why." The season is very young yet and there is plenty of time to get back into a good, healthy stride, winning games and bringing the usual large attendance of local enthu-slasts to National Park.

Base Ball Notes. Boston again today.Klobedanz and Baker will probably pitch. Jimmy Slagle made his first appearance yesterday and was "pinked" by Willis on his first turn at the bat. Jimmy looks pale and drawn, and it will be some time before he gets into first-class condition. It is hard to recall a year in which the Bostons were in such perfect condition this early in the season. Their batting has generally been weak at the start, but from yesterday's exhibition it would seem that they intend to support their twirlers, both in the field and at the bat. The spectators had a good illustration yesterday of what a farce the balk rule would have been if carried out as originally intended. Last year a balk would have moved only the runner on first, but Willis' break yesterday sent a runner home from third, the man on first to second and the player at the bat to first. Quite a penalty for a little slip up in memory.

Of the twenty-one safe hits made by Boston yesterday only two were for extra bases, doubles by Tenney and Willis.

When the Bostons play here again they should be handicapped, inasmuch as they should be compelled to keep inside the playing grounds. The idea of a player going into a private box to make a play as did Jimmy Collins yesterday belongs to stagecraft and not base ball stategy.

Arlie Latham has become a great favortie with the spectators through his really humorous remarks, and it would seem as would have been if carried out as originally humorous remarks, and it would seem as though his gingery actions would be infec-tious among the Senators. Arlie no doubt around that Baltimore and Cleveland will be dropped and the best players of each team be distributed among the weaker of the remaining ten clubs. Two ex-Senators were very much in yes-

Two ex-Senators were very much in yesterday's Cincinnati-Chicago game, Selbach making two damaging errors for the Reds, while DeMont played perfectly and hammered out two hits for the Colts.

According to McPhee, Charley Snyder, who caught for the Cincinnatis when they still were in the association, was one of the greatest "snap" throwers in the business. "When I played on the same team with Snyder," said McPhee, "he was past the prime of his career as a catcher, and yet he was better than any catcher in the business today. Even after his arm went back on him, he made base runners look like dences. He could get the ball away so quickly that his lack of speed was more than counterbalanced."

A Chicago paper says: "De Montreville is seldom absent from the coaching lines and maintains a constant chatter of encouragement to his teammates. It is perhaps rather humaness.

ment to his teammates. It is perhaps rather humorous when 'the freshman' shouts to Veteran Jimmy Ryan: 'That's the eye, Jimmy; your lamps are all right. Hit her out, old boy; we need a couple more,' but the gingery effect upon the team is beneficial."

The Louisville outfield last season ran up a base-pilfering record of 152 bases, or an average of 50 bases per man. Clarke had 66 steals to his credit; Hoy, 44, and Dexter, 42. At the recent league meeting in New York President Barney Dreyfuss wagered a wine supper with Charley Ebbets for a party of 10 that his trio of shifty outfielders would pile up a larger record of base emwould pile up a larger record of base em-bezzlements than Kelley, Griffin and Jones, the Hanlon trio. Hanlon heard of the bet and suggested that Ebbets should set up the banquet that night instead of awaiting the banquet that night instead of awaiting the next official base stealing record.

Judging from the number of long hits that have been made on the local grounds this season, the quality of balls used this year must be much better than those or last season. The light batting all along the line last season has been attributed to the balls, which, no doubt, were made of inferior material. Captain Ewing registered numerous complaints about the balls last year, but up to date he has not found a ball that has not come up to the standlast year, but up to date he has not found a bail that has not come up to the standard. "There is no doubt about it, the balls are much better this year than last. At least, all those we've had have been better," said he. "Last year I don't laslieve that there were ten balls hit against the fence during the entire season, a.d there have been more than that many hit that far this season, and one over the fence. Last year the balls became soft after using them a few innings because the rubber inside broke. None of the balls rubber inside broke. None of the balls that I have had have been broken in a game so far. If the balls are better this year the batting, too, will be better."—Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune.

STILL ANOTHER FOR GEORGETOWN. Harvard's Unbeaten Nine Defeated in an Exciting Game. When Georgetown and Harvard met yesterday at base ball on Georgetown field with a torpid liver, which produces constipa-tion. I found CASCARETS to be all you claim-for them, and secured such relief the first trial, that I purchased another supply and was com-pletely cured. I shall only be too glad to rec-ommend Cascarets whenever the opportunity is presented."

that a doughty combat was in prospect. Neither of these excellent college teams had been defeated up to that time. George-town's colors still float proudly without a scar. Harvard's men fought the game like gladiators of old and did not acknowledge the superiority of their opponents until the last ball of the exciting innings had been pitched. The game was full of incidents and tenset positions, calculated to bring about an attack of nervous prostrawitnessed. Not one of the eighteen atheletes in the play but strained his last nerve and put his last drop of energy into his work. Georgetown finally won by a score of 6 to 5.

The game was witnessed by about 1,500 persons. Of course the Georgetown rooters were in the majority. There was quite an extensive representation of fair Harvard in the stand, however, and the crimson was very much in evidence. There was still a third class of spectators. They were the Washington lovers of good base ball. Many of the faces once a feature of the games at National Park were seen at Georgetown, their owners reveling in the goodly game as played by enthusiastic, willing and capable college men.

Throughout the nine innings there was never a lag in the interest. With two teams so evenly matched the tide turns in an instant. All present realized this. When Georgetown pulled out her victory and Bach struck out the last man, leaving three of Harvard's red-stockinged players on the bases, the joy of the students and their sympathizers from the city knew no bounds. Their pitcher, Bach, who fairly won his own game, was carried off the field on willing shoulders. His pitching was superb, in spite of the eleven hits made off him. His long hit in the seventh inning, bringing in three runs, made Georgetown's victory possible. Harvard played a magnificent game from start to finish.

Georgetown plays Virginia tomorow and another game like that of yesterday will be the result.

HEILBRUN & CO., 402 7th St. N.W. Sign: "The Old Woman

> From the Philadelphia Press. A "contract marriage" is an interesting phase of relationship that some people may be parties to, and yet oblivious of the binding obligations in law. This was illustrated in a decision of the superior court, sitting at Pittsburg, and affirming the orphans' court of Philadelphia in the matter of the state of Louis B. Hines. One Laura Hines claimed, as the widow, a "widow's exemption." The couple had lived together, Hines having promised to marry the woman, but he died without having fulfilled his prom-ise. Hence the courts sustained a "contract through them.
